Emergency
Response Program

Helping People
Live Independently

What is Life Link?

- An Emergency Response System
- 24-Hour Access to Help

Who Uses Life Link?

- People with chronic medical conditions
- People with ambulation (walking/moving) problems
- People who are elderly, disabled, or handicapped

What Does It Provide?

- Peace of mind for yourself and family members
- Immediate access to help any time, day or night

Helping People
Live Independently

How Does it Work?

- 1) A small button is worn around the neck or wrist.
- 2) A monitor is connected to your phone line.
- 3) Pushing the button activates a call to our response center, and the monitor becomes a speaker phone.
- 4) This works even if your phone is off the hook or there is a power outage.
- 5) The operator will talk to you through the unit speaker phone. If they do not hear you, they will call a Responder to check on you.
- 7) When the Responder arrives, they press the "reset" button on the monitor. This will signal that help has arrived.
- 8) If no Responders are available, the response center will call emergency services to your home.
- 9) A Responder can be a neighbor family member, or friend that you have chosen.

What do people say about Life Link?

"It's something that you feel safe with. If you are by yourself you need one. It's nice to know somebody will come and help you. Nobody should be without one if they are living alone. They are a good thing to have."

Audrey Smith
Former Life Link Client

"Having Life Link is really a peace of mind in case something happens."
