United Airlines offers different types of tickets, and whether you are eligible for a fully refundable cancellation depends on the fare rules you selected at the time of booking.

Fully refundable tickets typically allow passengers to cancel their trip without paying any cancellation fee, while non-refundable tickets have stricter rules.

When purchasing a ticket, United Airlines provides both refundable and non-refundable fare options clearly labeled during checkout.

+1-888-425-9695

If you purchased a refundable fare, you can cancel your ticket and receive a full refund to your original form of payment.

+1-888-425-9695

This process is generally straightforward, and United doesn't charge cancellation fees for refundable tickets.

+1-888-425-9695

However, if you purchased a non-refundable fare, cancellation typically results in a travel credit rather than a refund.

+1-888-425-9695

This credit can be used for future travel on United Airlines within 12 months from the original booking date.

To confirm if your ticket is refundable, check the confirmation email or log into your United Airlines account.
